DETAILED ACTION

1. Acknowledgement is made of the response filed 1-9-09.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 10-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Akeley (US 3735639) in view of Leverberg et al (US 4638668).

Regarding claim 10,18 Akeley teaches a basic body (fig. 1) 28 and a sensor element 90, the sensor element includes a receiving element 10. Akeley et al however does not explicitly teach a base portion in direct contact with the sensor element and a tip portion which directly contacts a medium whose variables are to be measured. Leverberg et al teaches a base portion 1 in direct contact with the sensor element and a tip portion 22 which directly contacts a medium whose variables are to be measured (col. 5 lines 10-20).

It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the sensing apparatus taught by Akeley with a base portion in direct contact with the sensor element and a tip portion which directly contacts a medium whose variables are to be measured as taught by Leverberg et al for the purpose of monitoring fluid with more precision as regards to the course of temperature and pressure (Leverberg et al col. 5 lines 20-30).

Regarding claims 11-13, 15 Akeley teaches a plurality different receiving elements can be exchanged or is permanently connected (col. 1 lines 55-62) the sensor element 90.

Regarding claim 14 Akeley teaches different exchangeable receiving elements have various cross-sectional shapes and/or cross-sectional surfaces for installation in corresponding cutouts in the receiving element (fig. 1).

Regarding claim 16 Akeley teaches different sensor elements can be assigned to the basic body (fig. 1).

Regarding 17 Akeley teaches the receiving element 90 is a pressure and/or force transmitting element.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 10-18 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE

FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
